About cookies and IDs

We rely on cookies and device IDs to remember your settings and other preferences across your signed-in devices. We also use cookies and IDs to
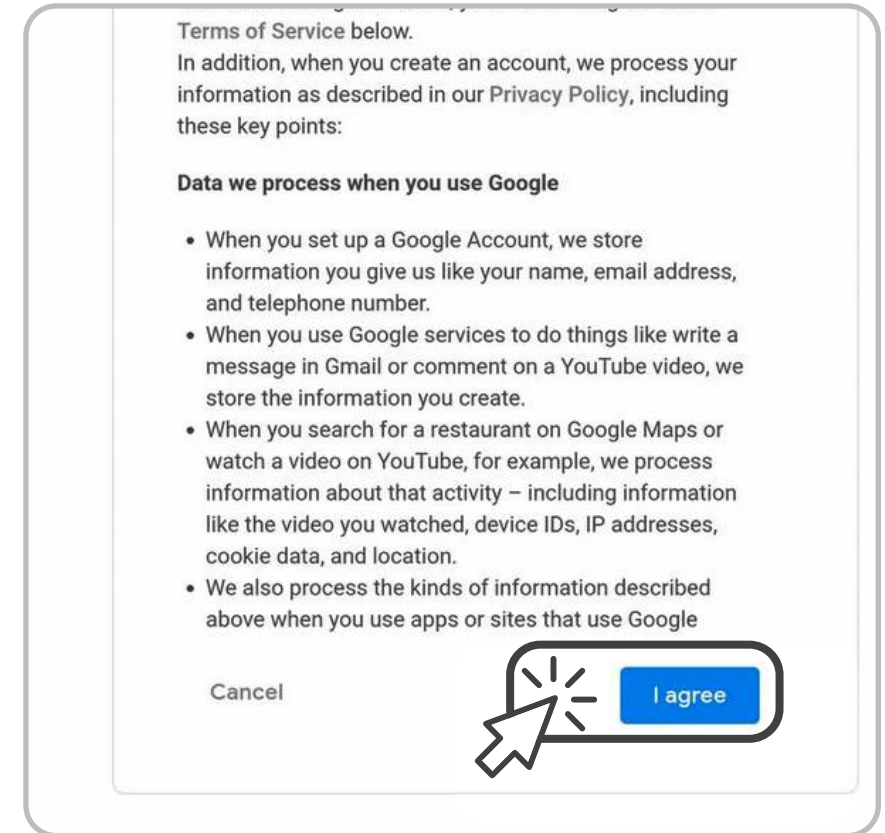

- deliver, maintain and improve our services and ads
- tailor your content and ads based on your activity on Google services and sites, and on apps that partner with Google (depending on your settings)
- conduct analytics and measurement. We also have partners that measure how our services are used.

Terms of Service below.
In addition, when you create an account, we process your information as described in our Privacy Policy, including these key points:

Data we process when you use Google

- When you set up a Google Account, we store information you give us like your name, email address, and telephone number.
- When you use Google services to do things like write a message in Gmail or comment on a YouTube video, we store the information you create.
- When you search for a restaurant on Google Maps or watch a video on YouTube, for example, we process information about that activity – including information like the video you watched, device IDs, IP addresses, cookie data, and location.
- We also process the kinds of information described above when you use apps or sites that use Google
